

THE THIRTIETH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME, year C

Responsorial psalm: "The Lord hears the cry of the poor."

Jesus said that those who humble themselves will be exalted. These words carry profound meaning, as true humility is often more challenging to achieve than we realize. It's easy to put on a facade of humility before God, yet the real test lies in revealing our authentic selves. The humility Jesus calls us to is deeply rooted in the purity of God's childhood. It invites us to embrace the truth, which not only restores our dignity but ultimately elevates us. We must first acknowledge our God-given greatness before recognizing our humble position. The Eucharist teaches us this essential truth, transforming us and reminding us that without it, we are truly helpless.
